

PNEUMONIA CARRIES OFF

STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER LEWIS S. SADLER.

A Son of the Late Judge W. F. Sadler, a Native of Adams County.

Lewis S. Sadler, State Highway Commissioner, died at his home in Carlisle after a day's illness from pneumonia, on last Friday, in his 48th year. He was a son of the late Wilbur F. Sadler who for twenty years was judge of the courts of Cumberland county. The father was a native of Adams county, having been born in the northern end of the county where the Sadler family was prominent. Lewis Sadler was a member of the class of 1895 at Yale, and later graduated from the Law School of Dickinson College. He practiced law several years in Carlisle and became interested in financial interests there and elsewhere, becoming president of the Farmers' Trust Company of Carlisle. He married Miss Minnie Bosler, of Carlisle, who died six years ago. During her lifetime they built Thornwood, one of the show places of the State, a colonial home set in a park of many acres surrounded by woods, sunken gardens, a golf course and drives, and inclosed within a high brick wall. He was considered as the most efficient of the State officials at the capitol. He had a brilliant mind. It is said of him that when offered State Highway Commissioner he declared that he knew nothing of roads except from driving over them, but "I can find out" and his study of roads led him to build only permanent types. It was Commissioner Sadler who spent the fifty million dollars for roads and in all his travels over the State he never handed in a bill for traveling expenses and never used State cars except on a single occasion when his own was laid up for repairs.

Gettysburg and Adams county owes her magnificent system of highways to Lewis S. Sadler who not only knew an attachment for this place but looked upon Gettysburg as one of the Meccas of this country and it was part of the duty of the State to help make the place easy of access to the hundreds of thousands who come here annually.

Peter Morse Lowe, native of Adams county and veteran of the Civil War, died at the home of his brother J. E. Lowe, at Williamsport, Wednesday of last week from an attack of cerebral apoplexy, aged 75 years, and was buried in the Pennsylvania plot of the National Cemetery here on last Saturday morning. The funeral services were held in the funeral parlors of H. B. Bender, Baltimore street, conducted by Rev. Dr. T. C. Billheimer. Mr. Lowe was born in Adams county near the Mason and Dixon line and lived part of his early life in Gettysburg. While living in Gettysburg he enlisted as a private in Co. B, 188th Pennsylvania Volunteers on Oct. 30, 1862. He was in most of the important engagements of the war and was shot in the cheek at the battle of Cold Harbor. He received his honorable discharge from the army on Oct. 31, 1865, serving just one day over three years. He leaves one brother, J. E. Lowe, of Williamsport. The Sons of Veterans furnished a firing squad, pallbearers and bugler and conducted the burial service.

Two Bad Fires at Emmitsburg.

Shortly after 9 o'clock on Wednesday morning fire was discovered in the roof of residence of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Annan at the western edge of Emmitsburg, and before the flames could be successfully fought they had gotten such headway that the entire building was burned out. The house was a large stone structure but the fire starting at the roof burned down through the floors so rapidly that only part of the furniture on the first floor could be saved. The loss which is about $10,000 is partly covered by insurance. The Emmitsburg Fire Co. fought the blaze for several hours and were able to keep it from spreading to the adjacent buildings. Mr. and Mrs. John Reed Scott formerly of this place, have been making their home with Mr. and Mrs. Annan for the past year.

The big bank barn on the farm of Mason and Burton Krushner, about a mile east of Emmitsburg, burnt to the ground early Wednesday morning. Harry Dorsey is the tenant and went to the barn with a lantern about five o'clock in the morning. While at his work he noticed the lantern sputter and almost go out. When he attempted to blow out the flickering light the lantern exploded, throwing burning oil over his clothing and on the hay. While extinguishing the fire on his clothes the blaze in the hay spread and was soon beyond all control. Six horses and nineteen cattle were gotten out of the barn but the barn and contents, farming machinery and produce was consumed, entailing a loss estimated at $10,000. The barn was 100 by 80 feet. The Krushner brothers bought the farm about a year ago. There was insurance but the loss it is said will exceed insurance.

ROTARY CLUB BANQUETS.

Hears Able Address From Hon. Jos. W. Fordney.

Hon. Joseph W. Fordney, of Michigan, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, and father of the Fordney Tariff bill which has passed the House and bill is now in Senate, was the guest of honor at a banquet of the Rotarians at the Hotel Gettysburg Monday evening. Guests were present from Harrisburg, York, Hanover, Chambersburg, Waynesboro and Hagerstown. About one hundred and fifty guests were at the banquet. Among others present were Congressman Joseph H. Himes, who briefly spoke, and Congressman E. S. Brooks.

Hon. Joseph W. Fordney while devoting himself to the American Valuation plan under the Fordney bill, illustrated his talk with exhibitions which would be remedied in his opinion by the American valuation plan, though a number of the exhibits he confessed needed prosecution under profit law. His pockets yielded no end of exhibits. First came the knife bought in Germany at nine and a fraction cents and made by labor receiving 66 cents a day, and a knife made by the same company sold in Chicago for $5.00 and a knife with pair of scissors sold for $8.00. Then followed a cut blue cup and saucer from Japan, which sold at home for twenty-four cents a dozen, and Mr. Fordney bought the same cup and saucer in Philadelphia for $4.50. He had a safety razor bought in Germany for 19 cents and asked how long Gillette was going to compete with his razor at $5.00. Then he produced a watch made in Germany at 69 cents and wondered whether it had anything to do with sending the Ingersoll Company with its dollar watch into the hands of a receiver.

The American valuation was explained. If an article on which an ad valorem duty is assessed has a value in Germany of but one-half its value in England, the amount of import duty translated to dollars and cents, is one-half as great against the German commodity as against a comparable English article. Thus a prohibitive rate against England may be less than a fair rate against Germany. If, however, the articles from Germany and England are appraised in the American market, they will pay the same duty (translated to dollars and cents) regardless of their cost, and a comparatively low ad valorem rate will protect the American manufacturer and the amount of protection will not decline when foreign prices decline and when protection is most vital.

The American valuation was declared would bring in increased revenues and the speaker answered many of the objections advanced against it, declaring selfishness was back of the objections and the plan he believed would best help American industries and labor.

Court Decides in Favor of English.

In the controversy which arose some time ago between the English and German factions of St. John's Lutheran Church in York over the question whether services in the English may be permitted in that church, which finally got into the York County Courts, has been settled by the opinion of Judge Ross handed down on Monday. Judge Ross signed a decree authorizing that the church charter be amended by striking out Article 8 which reads as follows: "the worship, and all religious services in the church, shall forever be conducted in the German language as long as two members of the congregation remain, who desire it," so that sermons and services in English may be permitted in the church.

I. O. O. F. Banquet.

On Wednesday evening Mason and Dixon Lodge No. 69, I. O. O. F. of Harney, Md., celebrated its twenty-first birthday by giving a banquet at the hall in Harney. The menu was an excellent one consisting of oysters in all styles, fruits, apples, cakes and coffee. There were nearly two hundred persons seated around the festive board composed of members, their families and invited guests. After doing justice to the good things they were entertained with instrumental music with Bro. Curt Fissel at the organ.

The success of the banquet is due in a large measure to the untiring energy of the committee in procuring the services of Bro. Joseph Hoke and Chas. D. Gillelan of Emmitsburg, Md., as the caterers who sustained their reputation by the satisfactory manner in which everything was served. Those who acted as waiters also deserve praise. The committee deserve and have the thanks of the entire membership. J.F.S.

TENCRIMINAL INDICTMENTS

TWO OF THE CASES WERE TRIED—A NUMBER OF CHARGES

First Civil Case, Robert Sheads, for Loss of Arm Ended with $10,000 Damages.

President Judge Donald P. McPherson and Associate Judges E. P. Miller and H. B. Pearson presided at the regular January court beginning on Monday at which there was a number of criminal cases to be disposed of and a long list of civil cases for trial.

Constables were first called, sworn and their returns taken, containing minor matters. There were only eight constables having anything to report as to repairs needed to roads and bridges.

The Grand Jury was called and sworn. Edward T. Auker of New Oxford, was appointed foreman and they were in session until Tuesday, hearing the ten cases presented to them by District Attorney Raymond F. Topper.

Four indictments were found against J. C. Lapham of East Berlin, one charging carrying concealed deadly weapon, the second one assault and battery with intent to kill, the third and fourth wantonly pointing a pistol and the four indictments were found true bills. Defendant pleaded guilty to the first charge and went to trial on the other charges.

Guy Blocher, charged with voting more than once at the November election in Littlestown, was found a true bill and case was continued until the April court.

John Pepple, charged with assault and battery, was found a true bill. Case was tried.

Clarence W. Kump, charged with fornication and bastardy was found a true bill and continued.

Clarence Carson and Albert Warren, charged with disturbing religious meeting, were found true bills, and by reason of the youth of the offenders, the case was certified to the Juvenile Court for hearing on Saturday.

D. C. Asper was charged with false pretence and making and circulating false statements with intent to defraud and the two indictments were found true bills and on motion of defendant cases were continued until the April court.

The work of the Grand Jury was finished by noon of Tuesday when they were discharged.

Trials.

The trial of J. C. Lapham began Monday afternoon. On Dec. 15 he entered the butcher shop of Charles Wolf and committed an assault and battery on Orville Ziegler, and drew a revolver and fired it but it did not appear that gun was pointed at Ziegler. After some of the testimony was taken Lapham pleaded guilty to assault and battery and aggravated assault and battery and jury then found him not guilty of the charge with intent to kill. He was also found guilty of wantonly pointing a pistol at the McMaster boys.

John Pepple was next tried on charge of assault and battery of Catherine Pepple. There has been bad blood between the two for years. The two met on the road and the woman alleged that John committed an assault and battery and John said that the woman passing him in a buggy had tried to hit him with a whip which provoked the assault. The trial ended Tuesday noon with a verdict of not guilty and costs to be divided between John Pepple and Catherine Pepple.

First Civil Case.

The first civil case tried was Robert Sheads vs. Walter D. Hines, director general of railroads, for damages for the loss of his right arm in an accident. The jury in the case was selected Tuesday afternoon and case was concluded Wednesday afternoon, about 5:15 with a verdict of Ten Thousand Dollars. The accident took place in 1919 at a railroad crossing of Western Maryland in Hanover. J. M. Bender was driving the car and Robert Sheads was on the rear seat. View of track was obstructed by a box car. The automobile was traveling slow but the engine hit car before an escape could be made, and Robert Sheads was hurled from machine and injured. He was rushed to the York Hospital where his arm was amputated. Several citizens of Hanover were witnesses, who saw the accident and who testified that the fault of the accident was entirely with the railroad and the young men in the car were not to blame. J. Donald Swope, Esq., represented the plaintiff and Richard E. Cockran, Esq., of York, the railroad administration. Motion for a new trial was made and leave given to file reasons within four days.

The next case tried was that of G. M. Krug vs. James Murren. The defendant petitioned the court that judgment against him be opened and he be allowed to enter a defense. This was granted and the matter was heard by a jury on Thursday with a verdict in favor of plaintiff for $313.45.

A number of defendants charged with criminal offenses plead guilty and will be sentenced. Those who will come before the court Saturday are the following:

Edgar Nagle has plead guilty to charge of larceny.

John Fletcher has plead guilty to the attempt to manufacture liquor in cellar of Eagle Hotel. It is said he was caught before any liquor was made, hence the charge is an attempt to make.

Ivan C. Sentz has plead guilty to drawing checks with intent to defraud, three charges being preferred against him by George Martin, George W. Reichle, and Emory H. Forrest.

Harry Smith has plead guilty to defrauding boarding house keeper. J. Albert Vaughn has plead guilty to burglary, entering cottage of Rev. J. B. Baker along Marsh Creek, and carrying away a number of articles.

William Snyder has plead guilty to two charges of larceny.

Elmer Wagaman was discharged, the District Attorney having not pressed the charge against him. On Saturday will also be heard the non-support case brought against Earl Swope.

Will Replace Chipped Auto Tags.

As the result of a conference of State officials, the men who furnished the metal and paint for the 1922 State automobile license tags and representatives of the Prison Labor Board an effort will be made to see that all owners of motor vehicles whose license plates have flaked off receive new sets of tags. From all parts of the State have come complaints that the light background is peeling off tags and the numbers become indiscernible at a short distance.

The plates were made at the Huntingdon Reformatory for the State Prison Board and the board has agreed to replace all tags that are turned in as defective.

Of the 400,000 sets of tags so far issued for 1922 the State Highway Department has received notice of about 1000 sets that have not held their paint. To-day fifty letters pertaining to defective tags were received at the Automobile Division and this number is said to be the daily average received.

The owner of a car whose license plates have proven defective may notify the Automobile Division of the department of that fact, giving the number of the license. The new plates, which contain the same numbers as originally granted for this year, will be sent to him free in about a week, the time required for manufacture and shipment.

Owners of cars whose tags have flaked to such an extent that the number cannot be distinguished are liable to arrest if they fail to get new tags.

Wonderful Quartet.

The Flonzaley Quartet entertainment in Brua Chapel on Tuesday evening will be cherished as an unrivaled musical performance in Gettysburg. Adolfo Betti, first violin, is an Italian by birth. Alfred Pochon, second violin, Louis Bailly, viola, are French and Ivan d'Archevau, cello, is a Belgian. For sixteen years this superb quartet have given concerts throughout this land. The perfection of their interpretations is wonderful in the blending, the four musical instruments being made to swing along as one great grand harmony.

Pope Benedict XV Dead.

Pope Benedict XV, the 29th successor of St. Peter as head of the Roman Catholic Church, died on Sunday morning at 6 o'clock. His predecessor, Pius X, died Aug. 20, 1914, and Benedict XV was elected Pope Sept. 3, 1914. Sunday afternoon the body was removed from the death chamber to the throne room to lie in state. Funeral services were held on Thursday, and throughout the world services were held this week in memory of the Pope.

The College of Cardinals will meet at a very early date to elect his successor. Among Italian cardinals, Cardinal Gasparri, the Papal Secretary of State during the reign of Benedict XV, is the one mentioned as likely to be his successor. The one name outside of Italy prominently mentioned is the war hero Cardinal Mercier, of Belgium.

McSherry in Sanitarium.

Inasmuch as the charges against N. C. McSherry, the young Gettysburg man who attempted to pass a bogus check in Hanover, Jan. 7th, have been dropped, the hearing did not take place which was to have been held in Hanover Saturday. It is understood that McSherry has been placed in the Mt. Hope Sanitarium for observation.

The ladies of the Mite Society of St. James' Lutheran Church are preparing for their annual chicken and biscuit supper, which has become a feature of their winter program. The supper this year will be held on Thursday evening Feb. 9, beginning at 5 o'clock in the social rooms of the church.

PHANTOM GAVE GOOD ADVICE

Apparition That Appeared to French Shepherd Was Possibly Some Relation to the Leprechaun.

Every Irishman can tell you about the Leprechaun, the little man who dresses in red with a peaked cap, and lives in the ditches. Only one person can see him at a time, and if he does catch sight of him, must never take his eyes off for a single moment. Watching him carefully, he must run and catch him, and if he succeeds in doing so the Leprechaun will ransom himself by leading his captor to a creek of buried gold. At least, so runs the legend.

Some years ago a French shepherd of Aveyron lost two sheep. The following evening a figure in a black robe and with tanned head appeared to him, and told him to look for the lost members of his flock in a cave near Altes, adding that he would there find "more than sheep."

The next day the shepherd found the cave mouth exactly as described. Inside were his two sheep. Beyond, he came upon a chapel carved in the rock and containing chalices, censers, and candle-sticks all made of solid silver, and of very considerable value. A letter found in a missal showed that the place had been used as a place of worship during the Reign of Terror in 1793. The shepherd took the ornaments to his parish priest and was well rewarded for his find.

How Asbestos Is Produced.

The finest asbestos, and the greater part of the world's supply, comes from Quebec. Asbestos is a fibrous mineral that can be spun and woven into fabrics as fine as silk, which are unaffected by temperatures of from 2,000 to 3,000 degrees F. It is found in layers filling fissures in certain serpentine rocks. It is believed that when the rock was forming and still hot, water penetrated the fissures, widened them and dissolved some of the silica and magnesia. On drying, these crystallized as a hydrated silicate of magnesia, forming threadlike crystals building up from opposite walls of the fissures and meeting in the middle.

No one has yet discovered how finely asbestos fibers can be split. A microscopic magnifying 900 diameters revealed fibers that are estimated to be five one-millionths of an inch thick.

Delaware River Power Plan.

Announcement of a proposed plan to develop over a half million kilowatts in water power on the Delaware river, at a total cost estimated at 200 million dollars, appears in a recent issue of Electrical World. Active work will be commenced as soon as authorization is received from the federal water power commission. The plan calls for the construction of four dams, with an average head of 80 feet. A steam power plant with a capacity of one hundred thousand kilowatts will be erected somewhere in New Jersey in order to supplement the hydroelectric plant during seasons of low water.

SOME FISHING!

The millionaires at Florida resorts are having great sport this winter. The tarpon are biting great and some weigh as high as 200 pounds. Here are two landed by Capt. Chas. Thompson near Miami.

LURE TO THE ADVENTUROUS

Through All the Ages Man Has Dared Every Danger in the Search for Beautiful Things.

Now, a thing of beauty that is rare and difficult to obtain seems ever to have exercised an irresistible lure to adventurous man. To possess it he will suffer the hardships of the highest mountain climb, or risk the almost certain dangers of disease in tropic zones. He will dare death at the hands of savage enemies and pursue his quest far into the regions of unknown wilds.

Into the depths of shark-infested seas he dives with the hope of securing a lustrous pearl. Then to the top-most Alpine peak he climbs for a rare specimen of the edelweiss. A glittering jewel in an idol's head may tempt him to invade the sacred precincts of an Indian temple, or a beautiful flower lure him far into the primeval forests of Brazil, Colombia or Peru.

To this spirit the civilized world owes not only its greatest geographic discoveries and important additions to scientific knowledge, but to it is also due the discovery of many of nature's choicest things of beauty, things whose practical value may be but slight, but whose appeal is to the artistic and esthetic sense.—National Geographic Society Bulletin.

Some Aspects of the Farmers' Problems

By BERNARD M. BARUCH

(Reprinted from Atlantic Monthly)

The whole rural world is in a ferment of unrest, and there is an unparalleled volume and intensity of determined, if not angry, protest, and an ominous swarming of occupational conferences, interest groupings, political movements and propaganda. Such a turmoil cannot but arrest our attention. Indeed, it demands our careful study and examination. It is not likely that six million aloof and ruggedly independent men have come together and banded themselves into active unions, societies, farm bureaus, and so forth, for no sufficient cause.

Investigation of the subject conclusively proves that, while there is much overstatement of grievances and misconception of remedies, the farmers are right in complaining of wrongs long endured, and right in holding that it is feasible to relieve their ills with benefit to the rest of the community. This being the case of an industry that contributes, in the raw material form alone, about one-third of the national annual wealth production and is the means of livelihood of about 49 per cent of the population, it is obvious that the subject is one of grave concern. Not only do the farmers make up one-half of the nation, but the well-being of the other half depends upon them.

So long as we have nations, a wise political economy will aim at a large degree of national self-sufficiency and self-containment. Rome fell when the food supply was too far removed from the belly. Like her, we shall destroy our own agriculture and extend our sources of food distantly and precariously, if we do not see to it that our farmers are well and fairly paid for their services. The farm gives the nation men as well as food. Cities derive their vitality and are forever renewed from the country, but an impoverished countryside exports intelligence and retains unintelligence. Only the lower grades of mentality and character will remain on, or seek, the farm, unless agriculture is capable of being pursued with contentment and adequate compensation. Hence, to embitter and impoverish the farmer is to dry up and contaminate the vital sources of the nation.

The war showed convincingly how dependent the nation is on the full productivity of the farms. Despite bureaucratic efforts, agricultural production kept only a few weeks or months ahead of consumption, and that only by increasing the acreage of certain staple crops at the cost of reducing that of others. We ought not to forget that lesson when we ponder on the farmer's problems. They are truly common problems, and there should be no attempt to deal with them as if they were purely selfish demands of a clear-cut group, antagonistic to the rest of the community. Rather should we consider agriculture in the light of broad national policy, just as we consider oil, coal, steel, dyestuffs, and so forth, as sinews of national strength. Our growing population and a higher standard of living demand increasing food supplies, and more wool, cotton, hides, and the rest. With the disappearance of free or cheap fertile land, additional acreage and increased yields can come only from costly effort. This we need not expect from an impoverished or unhappy rural population.

It will not do to take a narrow view of the rural discontent, or to appraise it from the standpoint of yesterday. This is peculiarly an age of flux and change and new deals. Because a thing always has been so no longer means that it is righteous, or always shall be so. More, perhaps, than ever before, there is a widespread feeling that all human relations can be improved by taking thought, and that it is not becoming for the reasoning animal to leave his destiny largely to chance and natural incidence.

Prudent and orderly adjustment of production and distribution in accordance with consumption is recognized as wise management in every business but that of farming. Yet I venture to say, there is no other industry in which it is so important to the public—the city-dweller—that production should be sure, steady, and increasing, and that distribution should be in proportion to the need. The unorganized farmers naturally act blindly and impulsively and, in consequence, surfeit and dearth, accompanied by disconcerting price-variations, harass the consumer. One year potatoes rot in the fields because of excess production, and there is a scarcity of the things that have been displaced to make way for the expansion of the potato acreage; next year the punished farmers mass their fields on some other crop, and potatoes enter the lists of luxuries; and so on.

Agriculture is the greatest and fundamentally the most important of our American industries. The cities are but the branches of the tree of national life, the roots of which go deep into the land. We all flourish or decline with the farmer. So, when we of the cities read of the present universal distress of the farmers, of a slump of six billion dollars in the farm value of their crops in a single year, of their inability to meet mortgages or to pay current bills, and how, seeking relief from their ills, they are planning to form pools, inaugurate farmers' strikes, and demand legislation abolishing grain exchanges, private cattle markets, and the like, we ought not hastily to brand them as economic heretics and highwaymen, and hurl at them the charge of being seekers of special privilege. Rather, we should ask if their trouble is not ours, and see what can be done to improve the situation. Purely from self-interest, if for no higher motive, we should help them. All of us want to get back permanently to "normalcy," but is it reasonable to hope for that condition unless our greatest and most basic industry can be put on a sound and solid permanent foundation? The farmers are not entitled to special privileges; but are they not right in demanding that they be placed on an equal footing with the buyers of their products and with other industries?

Assets are far in excess of capital and debts.

There is character and enterprise in the management of the business.

There is public confidence in its fair dealing.

Buy outright through your Bank or Broker, or on the Partial-payment Plan

Banks do not recommend any particular stock.

They desire, however, to encourage systematic saving and careful investing, and most of them afford the service and facilities of their loan departments to customers who desire to purchase reliable securities on the partial-payment plan.

The usual arrangement is to make an advance payment of approximately one-fifth of the purchase price, and pay off the balance gradually.

The dividends on the stock will more than pay the interest on the loan.

I felt mighty lame in the small of my back when I went to get up in the morning and no sooner did I bend over than the sharp, stinging pains ran through my back. My back had me out of sorts all over and I was in such shape that when I went to lift anything a pain cut me in my back and felt as if it were pulling me down. My kidneys seemed clogged up and were very inactive. I was out of condition in every way. Doan's Kidney Pills have been used in my family so I got some at the People's Drug Store. They got right down to the trouble and fixed up my back and put my kidneys in good condition again."

MODERN DAY MIRACLES

The Stored-up Sunshine of Other Ages Is Handed Down as a Heritage to Modern Civilization

(Told in Eight Sketches)
By JOHN RAYMOND

No. VI PREHISTORIC SUNSHINE

Coal may well be described as prehistoric sunshine. Ages before the dawn of our own era vast forests covered large portions of the earth's surface. In this ancient vegetation were stored up the treasures of nature and after the lapse of ages it became the heritage of civilization.

For centuries after it came into use coal was looked upon as valuable only as fuel. Later coke was obtained from it, then sulphur and lampblack, and finally gas for purposes of illumination. That seemed to be the limit of its possibilities a few years ago but today it would be difficult to enumerate all the articles of commerce extracted from its by-products.

Coal contains a little of everything that goes to make up trees but it would be a mistake to imagine that everything that comes out of coal tar is contained within it. While there are only about a dozen primary products extracted from coal tar, from these the chemist is able to develop hundreds of thousands of new substances. This is synthetic chemistry, or the process of building up intricate compounds step by step.

Raw material for the development of these coal tar by-products—war materials, fertilizers, colors, drugs and a host of other things—exists in abundance in this country, but we must be sufficiently interested in our future in dependence to save it. We can not go on indefinitely wasting billions of dollars' worth of this invaluable substance if in future years we hope to stand on an even footing with those nations that long have recognized its value.

The development of these products and compounds goes back to the color industry. This is not a large business in itself but it certainly is a strategic one because American industries employing more than two million workers and producing approximately three billion dollars' worth of products every year are directly dependent upon dyes. Take, for instance, textiles, leather, paper and paint.

New wonders are constantly being discovered in coal tar. Recently a French scientist succeeded in producing several small but perfect diamonds and synthetic rubies have been on the market for some time. Instead of sending traders on perilous quests to the four corners of the world for needed things a man may now stay at home and trust to the chemists to produce every necessity and most of the luxuries. No longer need we be dependent upon the potash deposits of Germany if we make our own fertilizers. Far off rubber trees are not so important if we manufacture our own rubber in the laboratory.

Brigadier-General Am. A. Fries, Chief of the Chemical Warfare Service, U. S. A., in a recent paper said: "What a thrill it must have given the German himself when he realized the almost limitless power the control of the dye industry would give him when waging war. He felt that with that control he could win in a war against the whole world. And few indeed are they who know just how close Germany came to winning that war. The lesson which that bit of history teaches us is to make ourselves masters of the chemical industry in all its ramifications, resting secure in the knowledge that if we do so no power on earth can overcome us for lack of war materials."
